

Imagine you are a crazy inventor and you want to sell your prototype to a group of prospective sponsors. Persuade them that your invention is a must-have and it is going to be a successful bestseller. You will need a lot of creativity and a sense of humour!

a bike that doesn't turn a one-string guitar

a kettle that doesn't boil water a pair of shoes without soles a CD with only one track recorded 15 times in a row

a pen without ink

a computer that doesn't connect to the Internet matches that don't light a rubber eraser that doesn't erase anything a motorcycle helmet made of silk a wallet that damages money

face tissues
made of hair

a clock
without hands

a water-
powered hair
dryer

a spiky
yoga mat

a garlic-
flavoured
chewing gum

a school bus
without windows

a swimming
cap made of wool

a car horn
that sounds
like a pigeon

a tracksuit
that melts on a sweaty body